This stylish bed and breakfast, just minutes away from Palermo, is run by an Anglo-Brazilian couple who have managed to create a modern but homely lodging that's more like an intimate hotel than a typical B&B. Although it has been beautifully renovated, the building still retains some original features. Each double room is en-suite, has a flat-screen television and a balcony, and a basket of baked goods awaits you for breakfast each morning. The owners are experienced travellers, and the cosy living area contains various books about South American travel that you could read outside on the lovely terrace.
